THE HISTORY OF CANNES

Founded in 997, at the foot of a hill serving as a look-out post for the Seigneury of Rodoard, Cannes began as a small fishing harbour overrun by reeds and known as "Portu Canuae", opposite the Lérins islands that have been known since antiquity as Léro and Lérina.

In 999, one year before the terrible year of 1000, the "Castrum Marcellus" castle was built on the Le Suquet hill. "Portu Canae" had a "khan", a high point in the Celto-Ligurian language, which is the origin of the name Cannes!

From Spanish and Saracen invasions, the 'royal' incarceration of the enigmatic Man in the Iron Mask and the spectacular escape by Marshall Bazaine, the armies of Charles V fighting those of François I, to Napoléon Bonaparte's landing, Cannes was already preparing for its cosmopolitan future...

See HISTORICAL GUIDED TOUR section, page 20.

Cannes became a must-visit destination in 1834! Cannes became well known across the Channel for its mild climate after a former Lord Chancellor, Henry Brougham and Vaux, decided to spend the winter here, a stay that ended up lasting thirty-four years!

Lord Brougham skilfully played the role of ambassador, inviting his friends and relatives to Cannes, and opening the gates of the town to his peers and to kings, queens, princesses, dukes and to the great writers and artists, such as Prosper Mérimée, Guy de Maupassant, Chateaubriand, Victor Hugo, Stendhal, Picabia, and later Renoir, Domergue and Picasso.

This is how the first Autumn-Winter tourist season was born. With paid holidays, this changed to a Spring-Summer touristic season.

When the first trains brought Queen Victoria of Great Britain, the Tsarina Maria Alexandrovna of Russia and the Kings and Queens of Sweden, Denmark, Belgium and Spain, Cannes was full of sumptuous palaces, town houses, large luxury hotels and reception venues. La Croisette, then called the Boulevard de l'Impératrice, established itself as a meeting place for society overlooking a stunning bay. Several casinos set the tone for international entertainment which, in addition to the Western aristocracy, attracted an eastern clientele: Maharajahs, Sultans and Emirs. The 1st clay tennis court in France was built in Cannes by Sir Thomas Woolfield, nicknamed the "Marquis de Carabas".

CANNES, CAPITAL OF ELEGANT SPORTS

Golf developed around 1890, under the impulse of Grand Duke Michael of Russia, the founder of Cannes Golf Club in Cannes-Mandelieu... Yachting, which arrived a few years earlier under the aegis of the Duke of Vallombrosa, finally achieved recognition here when the Prince of Wales, the future King Edward VII of Great Britain, established the prestigious Royal Regattas that brought the crowned heads of England, Russia, Denmark and Sweden together in the Bay of Cannes. The 20th century transformed the city of Princes into the leading tourism destination on the Côte d'Azur.

THE CANNES COAT OF ARMS

The coat of arms of Cannes, in azure, silver and gold evokes the town's sky, light and sunshine. Around the year one thousand, Lérins Abbey added two letters to the coat of arms: C for "Canna" (Cannes) and A for "Abbatia" (Abbey), one "en chief" [the upper left hand section of the coat of arms], and the other "en pointe" [lower right hand section]. This coat of arms remained in place until 1633.

On this date, without having any authority to do so, the consuls of Cannes decided to change the shield by replacing the two letters (C and A) by two fleur de lis, in honour of the Marquis de Saint Chammond, the governor of Provence's representative.

The silver palm on an azure background was the emblem of the abbey. Still on the coat of arms today, it is a reference to the palm tree that Saint-Honorat climbed so that the sea could clean the island of serpents.

FROM 1939 TO 2017, THE CANNES FESTIVAL IS CELEBRATING ITS 70TH ANNIVERSARY

At the end of the 1930s, shocked by the interference by the fascist governments in the film selection for the Venice Film Festival, the Americans and British supported the idea of an international cinema festival in France.

Of all the candidate cities (Vichy, Biarritz, Algiers), Cannes won the vote for its 'sunshine and its enchanting setting' as well as for its suitable facilities. Under the chairmanship of Louis Lumière, the inventor of cinema, the 1st Cannes International Film Festival should have taken place between 1 and 20 September 1939.

Its aim was to "encourage the development of the cinematographic art in all its forms and to create a spirit of collaboration between the countries producing films."

It was not until 20 September 1946, in the former Cannes Casino Municipal, that the International Film Festival opened, the first major international cultural event after the war. The first French Palais des Congrès was built in 1947 to host this prestigious event.

During the first years, the Festival was more a touristic or social event, or even an industry gathering than a competition. It quickly became the key event for the film industry and the annual event with the most media coverage, with almost 4000 journalists today.

MUST-SEE SIGHTS

LE SUQUET & THE OLD PORT

'Le Suquet' hill is the oldest part of Cannes. We would recommend you start your visit to Cannes with the old town. You can get there from various sides via the steep alleyways, criss-crossed with picturesque, winding steps where pedestrians are kings.

Visit the ramparts, the La Castre Museum, the square tower and the church. Admire the view over the town, the harbour, la Croisette and the Lérins islands. Much of the Bay of Cannes can be found at the foot of the old town, Forville market and its row of food shops (butchers, pork butchers, fishmongers, bakers, wine shops, etc.).

RUE MEYNADIER

In the stretch from the old town to Le Suquet, the pedestrian Rue Meynadier is a bustling street with food shops, such as the famous cheesemonger, Cénéri, the caterer, Ernest, sweet treats from Jean-Luc Pelé, Provencal specialities, etc. The street is full of many colourful shop window displays.

Place de La Castre

"For a relaxing break, I like to take the time to sit on one of the benches overlooking the town. From this wonderful spot, I let myself bathe in the light of the Bay of Cannes."

Mélanie R. - Tourist Office

THE PALAIS DES FESTIVALS

Its history is closely linked with that of the Film Festival. In order to host this flagship event, a building was erected in 1947 on the Boulevard de la Croisette, the current site of the JW Marriott Hotel. Given the growing success of the Festival and the development of business tourism, in particular with the first MIPTV event in 1965, Cannes decided in 1979 to build a new Palais des Congrès. It now boasts 44,000 m<sup>2</sup> of exhibition space, 15 auditoria and hosts over 50 international business events and some 300,000 delegates every year, making Cannes the second-largest business tourism destination in France.

THE WALK OF FAME

Producers, actors and other international celebrities of the silver screen have now left their handprints and signatures for posterity on the Allée des Étoiles du Cinéma, just like at the Chinese Theater on Hollywood Boulevard in Los Angeles.

Until now, over 150 prints have been made for film fans and visitors to enjoy. You will find them in front of the Palais des Festivals, on the Esplanade Pompidou and in the square Reynaldo Hahn.

The tourist office offers a Film Festival-themed tour. See the GUIDED TOURS section, page 20.

MUST-SEE SIGHTS LA CROISSETTE

In 1850, La Croisette was nothing but a simple path alongside the sea, in the middle of the sand dunes.

La Croisette is now an avenue known for its prestigious designers' brands and its great luxury hotels, such as the Carlton, the Martinez and the Majestic.

See CROISSETTE GUIDED TOURS section, page 20.

MUST-SEE SIGHTS THE MARKETS

The cool of the early morning is the perfect time to 'tour' Forville market. The scent of herbs: thyme, verbena and basil, waft through the air. The market gardeners with their strong local accents sing, vaunting the merits of their local produce: tomatoes, olive oil, the 'shine' of their fish, the sweetness of their aniseed-flavoured biscuits... To wander around Forville Market is to discover the region of Provence, a delicious journey with a Southern twist.

Several times a year, 'Forville's musical moments' runs musical tours of the market.

An original route to explore the architectural splendour of upmarket buildings during the Belle Epoque and the Roaring Twenties.

A succession of apartment blocks, villas and public buildings: in neoclassical, Art Nouveau, eclectic and Art Deco styles, built along a Haussmannian avenue, some 2,600 m long and 25 m wide, built by a subsidiary of Crédit Lyonnais bank and opened in 1883.

MUST-SEE SIGHTS PORT CANTO, PALM BEACH, POINTE CROISSETTE

Port Canto was the first private marina in France and remains one of the biggest in Europe. Some beautiful vessels are moored here. Palm Beach was built on the ruins of the La Croix Fort in 1929. It was the venue for great society evenings, attended by King Alfonso XIII of Spain, the Aga Khan, Winston Churchill, etc. The film "Any Number Can Win" by Henri Verneuil (released in 1963) was filmed around the swimming pool. Not far from here you will discover the splendid gardens of the Roseraie [Rose Garden] with play areas for children. From the recently-installed panoramic viewpoint map in the Palm Beach car park, you can admire a unique panorama over St Marguerite Island and the Bay of Cannes. A cross symbolises the location where the first pilgrims took the boat for St Honorat island. On windy days in the off-season, water sports enthusiasts, especially kite-surfers gather here.

La Pointe croisette

"I particularly enjoy strolling in this calm, pleasant and ideally located place. Alone or with friends, I love watching the setting sun light up the Esterel mountains."

RUE D'ANTIBES

Rue d'Antibes is the former imperial road linking Toulon to Antibes. It is the shopping street par excellence. In order to attract the English visitors in the 19th century, several shops were Franco-English, such as the pharmacies, grocers, tailors, etc. Today, the all the major international brands are found here. You can admire the décor, architecture and buildings dating back to the 19th century; beautiful doors bearing the initials of their first owners, ironwork and sculptures by Pellegrini, dating from 1883 (at No. 101), and the former Cannes Theatre with the facades decorated with masks (at No. 104).

See SHOPPING section.

THE LÉRINS ISLANDS

Just a stone's throw from La Croisette, opposite the Bay of Cannes, the two Lérins islands are waiting to welcome you.

In an idyllic preserved natural setting, these beauty spots in the Mediterranean offer visitors a unique collection of flora and fauna as well as a singular history combining the mysteries of the Man in the Iron Mask with the tranquillity of Cistercian monks.

SAINT MARGUERITE ISLAND

(900 m wide by 3200 m long)

The first island, Saint Marguerite, is famous for the legend of the Man in the Iron Mask and its Cello-Ligurian, Roman, and medieval remains. Just a short boat trip from Cannes, Saint Marguerite island is an exceptional site where nature, culture and relaxation blend harmoniously. From the moment you disembark, you will notice the fragrances from pine and eucalyptus trees, and the plethora of things to do here. No doubt, the best way to discover its true nature is to walk along the marked trails. This will take you past Batéguier lake nature reserve with its numerous species of migratory birds and Convention Point, where you can discover the different plant species.

SAINT HONORAT ISLAND

(400 m wide by 1500 m long)

A visit to St Honorat resembles a journey through time. Indeed, here it may well have stopped! Only the modern boats that drop anchor off the coast remind us that we are in the 21st century. The monastery on the island was founded in the 5th century by the monk, Honorat, and it is still the seat of the Lérins Abbey.

Visitors are welcome, and even if meditation is high on the agenda, the monks that live here all year round are very busy producing excellent wines and a liqueur called Lérina. The monastery also runs retreats.

WHAT TO SEE

When you tour the island on the Chemin de Ceinture (Coastal path) you can admire 7 chapels, the vineyard, the religious remains (Entrance gate, statues, etc.), the abbatical church, the fortified monastery (one of the rare examples of a monastery-keep in the West), not to mention a stop at the monastery's souvenir shop to discover the island's produce.

The Siagne Canal was built in 1868 to supply the city of Cannes with water. From its source in Saint Cézaire, it winds its way over the gentle slopes of the hinterland and ends its journey in Cannes at the California plateau.

From the edge of Mougins to the Super Cannes observatory, the canal runs underground, thus leaving room for a wide footpath. From the top of Avenue Ziem up to the Route de Vallauris, it is a pleasant walk and offers a view over Cannes that has inspired many an artist. Then from Avenue Bellini, the route crosses a wood where mimosas, giant agave and eucalyptus intermingle, to end on a high point with a stunning view of Palm Beach point and the Lérins islands. For a long time, this was the favourite walk of winter visitors.

Access point: Car park at the top of Avenue Ziem (Péouz roundabout). Duration: 1 hour.

LA BOCCA

La Bocca district, located 50 m from the Plages du Midi beaches, a favourite spot for large apartment hotels, has retained its authentic character. The wide range of shops and the Provençal market make it feel like a small village, where tourists and 'Bocassiens' mingle in the friendly streets, bars, restaurants and shops.
